"Über den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende John Mulholland was an American magician, author, publisher, and CIA operative. Throughout his life, he published many books on magic history, as well as served as the editor to a well-known magic trade magazine called The Sphinx. After resigning from the magazine, he was enlisted by the CIA to write a book on deception and manipulation. He died in February 1970. Ben Robinson has performed six different one-man shows (currently Mysterium) and has been seen in twenty countries (more than three million people entertained) since 1974. He credits his success to one thing: creating wonder. He's received awards from The International Brotherhood of Magicians, The Society of American Magicians, and the Milbourne Christopher Foundation. After 9/11, the NYPD gave him an Honorary Shield for his relief efforts. In 2008, Robinson penned The Magician: John Mulholland's Secret Life the first biography of Mulholland that includes never-before-seen documents and unpublished photographs the famous magician's time spent working with CIA."
