Dear Dreamer is a collection of poetry and prose about healing, growth and acceptance. It is a celebration of sensitivity and uniqueness. It is divided into four chapters: Confusion - The inception of insanity, of always feeling that you are looking at the world from the outside, trying terribly hard to fit in. Burying yourself beneath a facade the world may find more favourable. Realization - The process of understanding that sensitivity is a gift rather than a problem, that you are precious and unique, and you yourself have the power to be and to create something beautiful. Acceptance - The recognition of your strengths and your limitations and being okay with them, letting them both become your friends. Becoming a friend of your soul. Courage - Celebrating yourself. Spreading the message forward. Not feeling afraid or alone because no matter what happens, you will always be there for you.
