"Pressestimmen 'Awe. That's the only word I can think that not only describes my reaction to reading about Ed Gillet's incredible feat of ingenuity, endurance and sheer audacity, but of Shively's accomplishment in the recounting of it. The author's palpable, authentic feel for big water, for the paddle and for the scope of the saga comes through on every page, providing perspective without sounding, if you'll pardon the term, pedestrian. By the time I finished the book I was exhausted, but felt like doing nothing more than jumping in my own boat and paddling a little bit further than the day before. You can't ask more from a book than that.'--Sam George, legendary surf editor, director and writer of Riding Giants and Hawaiian: The Legend of Eddie Aikau'A great read for those who prefer more secure ways to explore life's questions, and an inspiration to adventurers. This classic tale will stand the test of time! Thanks, Dave Shively.'--Nigel Foster, author of On Polar Tides and The Art of Kayaking'I have been waiting thirty years for this book. When I first heard of Ed Gillet's heroic paddle to Hawaii I was thrilled and inspired in my own traveling. But this is much more than a book about a kayak journey. It is that great thing in travel--a brave quest, the solitary traveler turning his back on the cynics, and heading into a turbulent sea in a small boat, and finding landfall. It is a great metaphor for human endeavor. 'Never before, never since' indeed. But Ed Gillet is that rare creature--a modest man and also a hero. Dave Shively has told his story well.'--Paul Theroux, award-winning novelist and travel writer of The Old Patagonian Express and The Happy Isles of Oceania'In 1987 Ed Gillet crossed from California to Hawaii in an ordinary sea kayak, and barely spoke of it for 30 years. Now Gillet has opened his heart and journals to Dave Shively, who weaves a gripping portrait of a man as enigmatic and pure as the journey that defined him.'--Jeff Moag, Canoe & Kayak editor-at-large and former longtime editor of Canoe & Kayak Über den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende Dave Shively is an award-winning journalist who serves as the Content Director for TEN: The Enthusiast Network's Paddlesports Group. As the longtime managing editor of Canoe & Kayak and senior editor of SUP magazine, Shively established a respected voice in the sport by grounding unique profiles and travel narratives in paddling experiences documented from Nunavut to New Orleans. The Colorado-bred, California-based writer won a 2017 Folio Eddie Award for 'Healing Waters' (Canoe & Kayak, Winter 2016), a series of veteran profiles exploring PTSD and the transformative power of the outdoors."
