Everyone seems to be writing a book these days. With the rise of Kindle, iPad, and other electronic readers -- not to mention the growth of do-it-yourself publishing -- we are living in period that we might call The Writing Revolution. Most people with brains and diligence can write a book. But too many first-time authors waste hundreds of hours of time. Following a number of simple tricks can help to flatten the learning curve for books and other major writing projects. How to Write a Book guides the way -- and save you countless hours of frustration. In this special edition, updated for the 2016 National Novel Writing Month, Charles Euchner offers simple, usable tips for managing your book project. This NaNoWriMo edition of "Write the Book" contains a day-by-day strategy for you to complete a complete draft of a novel -- or other narrative work -- in just 30 days. ABOUT THE AUTHOR Charles Euchner -- the author or editor of a dozen books who has taught writing at Yale and directed a think tank at Harvard -- is a case writer at the Yale School of Management and the creator and principal of The Writing Code. In the past three years, Euchner has published a series of books on writing, including The Big Book of Writing (available in pulp as well as ebook form), The One-Minute Writer, and "In Cold Type: The Literary Techniques that make Truman Capote's 'In Cold Blood' A Masterpiece. Euchner is also the author or editor of ten nonfiction books. Nobody Turn Me Around: A People's History of the 1963 March on Washington (Beacon Press, 2010), has been praised as a dramatic reinterpretation of the civil rights movement.

Kirkus Reviews, in a starred review, called it "dynamic ... sharp, riveting." Juan Williams, author of Eyes on the Prize, called it "compelling and dramatic." Curtis Wilkie, a longtime chronicler of civil rights, says the book provides "a panorama of vivid characters."

Roger Wilkins, a former White House aide in the civil rights era, said it "brings it all back in vivid detail." A short documentary based on the book, written by Euchner, won the award for best writing at the 2011 Re-Image Film Festival and will air on PBS stations. Euchner's other books include a trilogy on the state of sports in modern America (Playing the Field, The Last Nine Innings, and Little League, Big Dreams), grassroots politics (Urban Policy Reconsidered and Extraordinary Politics), presidential politics (Selecting the President and The President and the Public), and regional politics (the two-part "Governing Greater Boston" project).
