Squared Away: Benning to Afghanistan is a non-fiction memoir about a former high school teacher's enlistment in the US Army Infantry at the age of thirty-nine. A surprising applicant for the military, Stephen enlisted in 2010, and attended Infantry Basic Training at Fort Benning, Georgia. His memoir describes what it was like joining the military at a time of war, what it took for him to complete the difficult Infantry training, and what it was like serving in Afghanistan in 2012. Stephen's memoir tells the story of his service with funny twists and turns that make Squared Away a genuine and heartfelt exploration of service. This book is fast-paced and accessible and will surely entertain any reader. Starting with an infamous "Shark Attack" this memoir pulls in the audience from the first chapter. Squared Away has twenty-four vignettes that comprise the chapters of the memoir. Each one details a different, humorous event and works within the larger context of what it means to serve America in uniform with brutal honesty, conviction, and care. In the book we meet a merry band of characters including sadistic drill sergeants, high-speed recruits, and hapless teenagers far from home. Stephen deployed at forty-one years old as an Infantryman to Afghanistan with the 4th Infantry Division, 4th Brigade Combat Team, from Fort Carson, Colorado. His unit was deployed near the Pakistan border in a time of chaos in the region. Part humorous account of Basic Training and part examination of what it takes to serve in uniform, Squared Away is a first-hand account of surviving in the military. It is Full Metal Jacket meets One Flew Over the Cuckoos Nest. Biography: I am a dad, combat veteran, and former history teacher. I grew up in the 80s listening to punk rock and going skateboarding. I love reading and have worked as a garbage collector, chimney sweep, frozen yogurt maker, and web designer. I also worked at the famous Powell's Books in Portland, OR. My muse is Tori Amos and my favorite movie is The Matrix. I now live in Tucson, Arizona. Through DNA testing my birth mom found me in 2019 and we are reunited after all of this time. We are both looking forward to our new life together. I have a B.A. in History from Pacific University in Forest Grove, Oregon. I am working on a Young Adult fantasy series and a mystery thriller.
