A Call for the Renewal of Western Culture Author Jens Zimmermann Publisher can rearticulate its identity and renew its cultural purpose by recovering the humanistic ethos that originally shaped Western culture. He traces the religious roots of humanism and combines humanism, religion, and hermeneutic philosophy to re-imagine humanism for the future. Oxford University Press, 2016. Since the early 1980s, there has been renewed scholarly interest in the concept of Christian Humanism. A number of official Catholic documents have stressed the importance of Christian humanism as a vehicle of Christian social teaching and indeed as a Christian philosophy of culture. The conflict here is the result of competing fundamentalisms refusing to acknowledge the shared structure of human knowledge to which both are indebted. Both science and religion rely on tradition, on received practice, operating according to a 'from-to' model of inquiry as articulated by Michael Polanyi.
